

SPEAKING INTRODUCTION

“Drew was born and raised in New York City on January 20, 1955. He was the only child of Rhoda Palestine and Drew “Bundini” Brown, Jr.

Drew’s father Bundini was the trainer and motivational force behind three-time world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali. His famous slogan “Float like a Butterfly and Sting like a Bee” is timeless and world renown. Brown graduated from Southern University at New Orleans with a major in business administration and minor in economics.

Drew joined the United States Navy where he earned Wings of Gold. He was then assigned to Attack Squadron 35 “The Black Panthers”—the oldest Attack Squadron in Naval Aviation history. At one time, he was the only black Naval jet pilot flying attack aircrafts (A-6 Intruder). Drew flew missions from the aircraft carrier USS Nimitz (CVN-69). Drew now flies Boeing -777 for Fed Ex.

Drew has been awarded the Meritorious Service Medal by the President of the United States, The Freedom Foundation Medal by the US Supreme Court, and the Congressional Black Caucus Male Achievement Award. Among Drew’s other numerous awards is the United States Chamber of Commerce’s Special Salute for outstanding leadership.

Millions of people have seen and heard Commander Drew Brown in person or via his appearances on NBC’s Today Show, NBC Nightly News, CBS This Morning Show, and hundreds of local TV and national radio broadcast. He has been featured in the New York Times, The Washington Post, and Fortune Magazine among other publications. His autobiography You Gotta Believe reached the bestseller list and is in its seventh printing and continues to receive raving reviews.

Commander Brown has spoken to thousands of people, both young and old and is nationally known as one of the most dynamic and no holds barred speakers of our time.”

(If video is used) “Take a look at the screen and see a real TOP GUN in action.”

“It is an honor and with great pleasure I introduce to you Commander Drew Brown.”

(If video is used) “And he doesn’t look like Tom Cruise!” 😊